

Thank you for completing the project. You have done really well. Your overall score is 77%. Kudos!

Here is how your submission has been graded. We hope you find it useful and helpful for your future submissions.

Parameter	Score	Comments
Has the presenter covered the most important points of the topic at hand?	2	Yes, but only some of them
Have you understood these points very well from the presenter?	2	Yes, I have understood them to some extent
How would you rate the presenter's knowledge of the topic at hand?	2	Average
How would you rate the presenter's understanding of the topic at hand?	2	Average
How would you rate the presenter's presentation skills?	3	Great
If someone would like to gain some understanding of this topic, would you recommend that he watch this presentation?	2	Yes, I'd recommend it. It would help!

Areas of Strength: (These are practices you should continue doing)

- I can see that you have put much effort into this submission. Well done!
- You have created your own design for the slides you used with the name of your product. That was good.
- You started with the vision and followed it by your goals and objectives. This is the true process to follow when it comes to creating your roadmap and product plan.
- The prioritization sheet you attached was perfect. On top of that, you used a valid method to set your prioritized features and illustrated that in your presentation. Great job!

Areas of Improvement: (These are practices you should start doing)

- You have focused a lot on the metrics you are measuring for each of your goals and features. That is great and essential but it wasn't that essential in this checkpoint. The more aspects you needed to focus on more is more actions and points about how to execute your product strategy and the steps to implement your goals.
- A product roadmap is mainly a document that communicates your product vision and according goals across a certain time interval. So, a very important element about a product roadmap is the time interval across which your tasks and goals are distributed. And that part was lacking in the presentation. It could be across different years, quarters, months, etc. But the time element has to exist clearly in your roadmap.

Additional Comments:

- Thank you for the great effort you put into this submission. Keep up the great work and looking forward to your next submissions :)
- We highly appreciate the efforts you have put into this checkpoint.

Keep up the great work! And looking forward to receiving your next submission :)

